MISHA

MILANO

Misha is an acronym that stands for two distant cities: Milan and Shanghai. A bridge between figurative cultures that coexist in the vision of Chiara Enrico, an architect who since 2007 with the help of her sister Anna has brought passion and knowledge regarding age-old oriental techniques of painting and hand embroidery on silk wallcoverings into the world of contemporary interior design.

Misha combines Italian taste and know-how with the excellence and charm of crafts practices dating back to the 18th century. The collections represent the outcome of many years of research on artisans and artists capable of interpreting the encounter between distant cultures, tradition, and innovation. The wallcoverings become a voyage to faraway lands, where the depiction of nature is dominant, evocative factor, based on fantasies of imaginary landscapes. Misha takes us back to the history of chinoiserie of the 1700s and the practice of the Grand Tour in 1800s: the escapist desire for an elsewhere that comes to life in spaces for living and working.

The expertise also extends to the high quality of the surface for painting and embroidery. Not just paper, but wall fabrics that clothe architecture with an unusual material depth, becoming decorative features in their own right. Thanks to unique workmanship and control of the entire creative and manufacturing process, Misha also develops bespoke projects for clients and companies, reinterpreting the symbols and dreams of each through this world of figuration.

Plains Collections

Misha's research is not limited to painted and hand embroidery, but also extend to the silk surfaces that can clad walls on their own, in solid colours, or establish a dialogue with the motifs of the collections and the chromatic palette found in the host spaces. For these supports, Misha carefully selects yarns with different thicknesses and weaves. They range from light Pure silk to the more substantial Dupion Silk, the evanescent gauze of Japanese Silk, bonded Double silk, various different techniques and finishes of Metallic and Natural Textures wallcoverings.

Pure Silk

When wallpaper becomes a design object. Light, thin, in pure silk, the Pure Silk wall covering collection bases come in a broad range of classic and unique plain colours. Walls covered in Pure Silk add a particularly elegant touch of lightness and colour to any room. Every year, part of the colour range is renewed following the trend inspirations, providing an updated support for contemporary furnishing moods. The background colours can be customized on request.

Dupion Silk

Natural elegance. Pure and essential beauty, not just to admire but also to touch: the Dupion collection wallpapers are made from natural silk fibre. Compared to the Plains silk wallpapers, these come with a slightly thicker, irregular shantung-type weave, which creates a highly effective gloss/matt effect. Thick and textured, it “falls” perfectly, making it ideal not only for wallpaper but also as a furnishing fabric.

Japanese Silk

The Rising Sun, a modern trend. Ethereal, special, ultra-elegant: the delicate beauty of Japanese silk is the key to this collection. Japanese Silk uses an ultra-thin silk gauze applied by hand on coloured paper. The result is perfect sophistication, with seductive nuances and special reflections, particularly when combining backgrounds and gauzes with contrasting colours.

Metallic

Luxe, calme et volupté: the Metallic collection is one of the excellences of the Misha catalogue. Ultra-thin gold leaf or other materials are applied by hand, piece by piece, patiently and skilfully, on many types of wallpaper. The result is splendid just as it is, in plain colours, but can be enriched even further with the version hand painted with the patterns of almost all the other collections. Metallic wallpaper is the ideal background for anyone seeking a modern, sophisticated interpretation of true luxury
